

About Us...

The project engages students, faculty, staff and administrators to work collaboratively to address issues related to sustainability in the Trent community. The project is oriented towards a research mandate centered around education and awareness.

The basis of the organization is to assess the current state of campus sustainability by completing a campus sustainability assessment framework. The Sierra Youth Coalition— the youth wing of the Sierra Club of Canada has created a strong network of campuses across Canada that have/ will be conducting similar research projects. The intent? To benchmark where the institution is in terms of sustainability and then to develop action plans to address certain areas.

WHAT IS

SUSTAINABLE TRENT

Working towards campus
sustainability!

Sustainable Trent began in July 2005, and is a student-driven initiative supported by university-wide participation. The objective of the project is to make Trent University more environmentally, economically and socially sustainable.
